“ Jeffrey...

I could write about you all day and do so with a smile on my face that would reach from ear to ear. It's close to a year now since you have been gone, and there's still not one day that goes by that you don't cross my mind, not one day I don't say outloud that "I love you!" when I see your picture or one of the many. I find myself lost in memories of you and can't manage to make it stop and as much as I thought it would hurt to remember you, I can't help but smile and remind myself of the love we shared. I believe you are always right where I need you, and that's looking over me until I get to see you again. You have brought sooo much happiness and love into my life and I wouldn't trade our time together for anything this life or world could offer me. I still think about your early morning phone calls filled with laughter and joy. Despite me wanting to ignore you and just go back to bed for another hour. After you said "Good Morning Love" I couldn't imagine hanging up the phone with you. The love I have for you will never run dry, the memories I have of you are what I carry with me just to get through the day. We shall see one another again one day and it'll be there we meet again and carry on right where we left off. Know your missed so much and I will be by your side again one day.

With ALL my love 💕

“ I don't think I can remember growing up in Lake Stockholm without thinking of Jeff. I remember him riding bikes in the woods across from his house or down at the pits...he was always tan and running through the dirt in one form or another. And he always had the best grin on his face...this picture just shows a bigger version of the kid I remember...and that grin is still there. He was always into mischief, not harmful stuff, just fun, kid stuff. I got the chance to catch up with him a few years back, and I am so glad I did. He was a sweet guy and the world is a better place because he was a part of it. It was an honor to grow up with him.
