“ Jerry was a special man, neighbor, and friend. Many nights he shared stories of his youth in Sparta, his time in the military, and stories of his family whom he loved very much. There were nights we'd talk and laugh until he fell asleep in that huge chair of his and I'd quietly retreat to my rooms upstairs.

I'm sorry I lost contact with Jerry and his family since I moved back to Texas. Life gets in the way of the best intentions. And then death closes the door too soon. Sometimes I still wake in the early morning hours and I lie in the dark remembering how I would hear the "next" movie tones on TCM come up through the the old farmhouse floor. Jerry would always apologize about the "noise" but it never bothered me. I was more worried when occasionally he'd be away from home and the house was quiet except for the noise old buildings make as they age. Having Jerry just a holler away was comfortable. We watched out for each other; each of us in our own way. I'm lucky to have had such a good neighbor. Jerry and his family were always kind and welcoming. Jerry was also what my grandmother would have called a "rascal." I'm sure he would have agreed with her. There were times, when telling a story from his past; especially about growing up on Main Street, the glint in his eyes was so bright I could feel the joy in the telling. Jerry was a special man. He was a good neighbor. Jerry was my friend. I hope he hears my words through the dark. Goodbye, my friend. Leave the TV on for me.

“ Unfortunately, my wife of 61 years passed away just a few months following Jerry’s passing. Consequently, I share in the loss of a loved one with Jerry’s extended family. Jerry was my cousin on the Fritts side of our family, His mom was my Aunt Elizabeth. , my father’s youngest sister. I remember spending several weekends with her family in Sparta back in the mid to late-1940s, where Jerry, our cousin Francis and I would play under the stairwell of her Victorian house and raze holy hell! Of course, Aunt Elizabeth would only take so much and then order us to bed! Soon after our grandmother (who was living with my Aunt Elizabeth at that time) died, I entered Blair Academy (a boy’s boarding school), Jerry and I lost touch. I did see him once while I was at the Andover Hotel on leave from the Army. It was then that I found out that Jerry and I entered the Army the same year in 1960. Jerry served for three years and I stayed on for 20 years. Thanks to his sisters (Carman and Cendra), we have kept in touch over the past umpteen years through the exchange of Christmas cards. In addition, my niece (Sandra Beebe Raynoir) keeps in touch with another of my cousins (Cindy Poist) on my mother’s side of our family. As a result, we still maintain family connections. After reading Jerry’s obit, I am sincerely impressed with the high level of his education and the success he achieved throughout his lifetime. May He Rest In Peace!

“ I clearly remember living across the street from the Smiths on Main Street in Sparta. Jerry was the “big” brother to Kendra, Carmen and Carlin, and I visited many times, playing in their yard or mine. So many years ago. My condolences to all. Terry McCarthy Hammler

“ Jay and Cynthia, don and I and our kids, Kathryn, Mike Paul and Steve are so sorry for your loss. We were neighbors of your MOM and Dad for 15 years. I remember your Dad giving a tribute to us at our going away and 25th anniversary party. It was endearing to me. Your Dad did several fishing trips with Don. Jerry was a good friend to us and a big part of our memories from Chester included him. He loved you kids so much. We hope someday we might see you both again. We have always loved you both.
