“ My dear friend Robin, (Robillama , peep the sisterhood, we had so many good times , fun jokes and a lot of memories . it seems wherever I go or whatever I do , you are there. I remember the fun we would have shopping and how you always said I need to brighten up. Somehow, you were able to convince me to buy the "peeptone" blouse and we wore them together....it was worth the odd looks we got. I hope you know when I get there , you have to pick out a new blouse for me. although I know you are with our lord in his heaven and you are safe with him,still I miss you more everyday. I miss so much , our talk s and visits . I can not thank ypu enough for the years of a wonderful friendship with such a strong courageous and beautiful woman . I will miss your clever and witty humour.. We seemed to always know what the other was thinking. I will always be grateful and blessed to have had you in my life. Holding you close in my thoughts and prayers, til we see each other again....God bless you , love dottillama xoxo

“ To My Dali Lahma Bama Rama! I am truly heartbroken that our friendship was temporarily interrupted. I can no longer call you to vent or discuss life's issues, whether political, religious or personal. There were no holds barred with the topics that we had chosen. We were freakas from the beginning and that is what enabled us to endure, have continuity, longevity and a profoundness in our friendship. You are my bestest female friend and for that I am truly grateful. The Lord has put you in my life for over 30 years and that is way too short. Everything is but for a season and that includes mourning and pain. You are for sure in the purest form in the Lord and embrace your time with Him. You were so resilient and no matter what fiery darts were thrown at you, you faced them head on, beat them off and continued to love the Lord with all your heart and being. Well done faithful servant! I love you and will miss you my sweet friend.

“ I remember that whenever we went out for breakfast at the Double S or to dinner to celebrate a birthday, Robin was always great at offering a prayer. She always had the right words of Thanks and Praise.
